

ABSTRACT

A system and method for providing compliance verification information in the field of network security, is disclosed. The software system, which is designed to be modular, provides compliance verification information with respect to a security policy. Each level of verification may be performed on a local basis, with respect to a network device, or on a global basis, with respect to multiple network devices, such as a communications network.